Albacarys to suggest that a glycolic acid solution should be used to prepare a target region of the skin for application of a chromophore and subsequent irradiation. Moreover, glycolic acid is only one of hundreds of possible agents that can be included in Albacarys' "article". Applicants fail to see any reason why one of ordinary skill in the art, even if they were motivated to modify Anderson's method, would do so by selecting glycolic acid from the long list of agents Albacarys suggests. The mere fact that the references can be combined or modified does not render the resultant combination obvious unless the prior art also suggests the desirability of the combination. MPEP at 2143. In view of the present amendment and the foregoing remarks, the Examiner is respectfully asked to reconsider and withdraw the rejection
